

Natural Stone Disclaimer

Johnson Quarries, Inc. is a Pennsylvania bluestone mining and processing company. Our natural stone products consist of a variety of Sandstone. These are products of nature, therefore, have what is commonly known as “natural stone variations.” This can include but is not limited to variations in color, texture, density, etc.

Purchaser acknowledges and understands that some stone may contain naturally occurring imperfections, (natural stone variations) which are characteristic to the stone. Because natural stone may chip, peel, flake, bleed, oxidize, or otherwise deteriorate over time, all of these attributes should be considered when using stone, especially in any exterior application subject to moisture.

Purchaser acknowledges that Johnson Quarries, Inc. has no control over Purchaser’s selection or use of any stone, and that exposure to weather, installation techniques or preservative measures used by Purchaser or its installer all may affect the long-term performance and durability of any stone selected and/or installed by Purchaser.

Please note that the actual stone delivered may differ from samples or pictures shown in our catalog or on our website, www.johnsonquarries.com. The purchaser acknowledges that additional stone purchased at a later date can have a different cost and cannot be guaranteed to match the original stone.

Johnson Quarries, Inc. reserves the right to make changes to this Natural Stone Disclaimer at any time, without making prior notice. Please feel free to arrange a visit to our stone yard to view the products directly. No returns will be accepted.

DISCLAIMER:

All natural stone products are sold “AS IS”. There is no warranty of any kind expressed or implied. This is including, but not limited to the merchantability, fitness or suitability for a particular purpose. As such, the installation or use of natural stone products constitutes acceptance, thereby releasing Johnson Quarries, Inc. from any and all claims.
